SALT LAKE CITY, Jan. 4, 1888. DEAR SIR-Pardon a stranger for asking of you a favor. In the summer of 1865 I (then with my Regiment, the 102d U. S. C. T., stationed at your town) was defailed as Provost Judge for Fairfield county. While acting in that capacity I made many pleasant acquaintances of your townsmen of that date, among whom none attracted me more than Col. James Rion. TRY GILDER'S PILLS For the Liver. McMaster, érice & Ketchin. THE SUMTER TRAGEDY.

Messrs. Editors: I wish to thank you for your timely article on the recent outrage in the State. What a mistaken idea of honor it is, that leads men to resort to the use of fire-arms to redress wrong, and oh! the agony their use invariably brings to the innocent! The tragedy in Sumter was peculiarly appalling! The victim, one of the most honorable, true and brave citizens in the State, who had served her faithfully in war and peace. We, who know his family, can realize their grief at being so cruelly deprived of father and brother, and join with you in hoping this false code may be "wiped away" ere other hearts are called to mourn.

Fall Drought on the Yield of Cotton.

ARTICLE ONE. Messrs. Editors: As experience and observation are our best instructors in all things, I will give a brief statement from my observation of two dry falls on the vield of cotton. My notice was first brought to it as far back as the year 1839, when we experienced Miss Mary Wood, of Charleston, is any unprecedented drought of nine weeks. It did not rain from the latter part of August to the first week in Chappells on Monday night, given in November. I will premise by stating I was actively engaged in the practice of medicine, and as I was employed generally by the farmers living in what is now called Jenkinsville township and for some time residing beyond its boundary, I had the opportunity of seeing the cotton planted near the public roads, and also to hear the farmers express their opinions as to the effect the protracted drought LIEBIG COMPANY'S EXTRACT would have on the growing cotton crop. They were unanimous in their decisions that the crop would be greaty lessened in yield, yet it was the argest crop that had ever been made in this county and I think throughout the State up to that year. I also remember that one of the largest and best farmers living in my immediate

A few weeks ago we spoke a little about Low Prices. Hundreds heard it and hundreds responded. 'Twas echoed all over Fairfield County, and people crowded the Great Bargain Store from morning till night. Cart-loads of Clothing and Dry Goods were carried off by economical buyers. The low prices we named struck terror to the business heart of all competition. Again we come to the front with an additional assortment containing more novelties and greater bargains. Hundreds of needy ones demand an encore of our
